

Philologia Classica
Notes to Contributors

Part 1. Article Submission

1.1 Philologia Classica accepts for publication articles and shorter notes in the field of Classical philology, covering a broad range of topics including Classical literature, Ancient Greek and Latin languages, textual criticism, papyrology, epigraphy, Indo-European linguistics, history of Ancient art, Ancient philosophy, religion and material culture, studies in Judaics and early Christianity relevant for Classics along with articles on the history of Classical studies and reception of Ancient culture in the Mediaeval (including Byzantine) and Modern European culture based on the analysis of Greek and Roman primary sources. Manuscripts submitted will be expected to contain original work. Any previously published articles or articles submitted for publication elsewhere will not be considered. The content and style of the articles should adhere to the current publication ethics guidelines. All submissions should be anonymised and will be subject to double blind refereeing.

1.2. Philologia Classica will publish topical articles (of up to 60,000 typographical units with spaces inclusive of footnotes, references, abstract and keywords) discussing problematic issues in the Classical studies based on a close analysis of primary sources and revealing familiarity with the scientific tradition on the subject. Barely narrative articles will not be considered.

1.3. Articles can be submitted in English, Russian, German, French, Italian and Latin. Russian is reserved for articles on reception of the Classical heritage in Russian literature and the history of Classical studies in Russia. The author is responsible for the correct use of the language chosen. Non-native speakers are encouraged to have their contributions corrected by a native speaker.

1.4. A detailed abstract (200 to 250 words) in English should be provided for all submissions. Authors are advised to be specific in the wording of their abstract and refrain from reiterating their introductory remarks or conclusions, or other general statements.

1.5. Your manuscript (in the layout discussed in Part 2) should initially be sent by electronic means in two copies (Word/.doc and PDF) to Anna A. Kormilina (classica.phil@spbu.ru), the executive secretary of the editors, and to Elena V. Zheltova, the editor-in-chief (e.zheltova@spbu.ru) or Michael M. Pozdnev (drpozdnev@yandex.ru), the managing editor of the journal. Please append the following details about yourself in a separate file: 1) your name(s), patronymic (if applicable) and last name; 2) academic degree (if applicable); 3) academic title (if applicable); 4) affiliation; 5) postcode and full address of an affiliation; 6) telephone number(s); 7) an email address; 8) the title of the article submitted. The files should have your name in the title, for example: Ivanov_PhilClass_article; Ivanov_PhilClass_details.

1.6. All submissions are subject to refereeing, the procedure of which is laid down in the Rules.

1.7. The decision on publication (or declining) of a submission is taken by the editors after refereeing, revision (if requested) and discussion, and takes from two to four months. Once taken, it is final.

1.8. If publication is offered, the authors will be asked to complete a copyright form. Being a serial title in abstract and citation databases, it is a condition of publication in the journal that authors agree to transfer the copyright for their article to St. Petersburg State University.

1.9. No fee is charged for publication.

Part 2. General Layout of a Manuscript (and Revised Version)

2.1. A manuscript should be submitted in Word/.doc and PDF.

2.2. A manuscript body should be in 12 pt Times New Roman font (text in Greek or any other languages should be in a Unicode font and also in 12 pt) throughout, footnotes in 10 pt font, 1.5-spaced on A4 in portrait layout with justified margins of 2 cm. on each side and with every page numbered.

2.3. An initially submitted manuscript should not contain any name of an author or any personal notes either in its title, body, header or footer. The works by an author should be cited in the third person and any acknowledgements or thanks should be avoided. On the title page, aligned on the left, there should stand:

a. manuscript title (capitalised, semibold) in the submission language;

b. manuscript title (capitalised, semibold) in English;

c. abstract in English (200–250 words);

d. a list of up to ten keywords in English, separated by commas, with the title Keywords in italics.

2.4. Should a manuscript be accepted for publication, in a revised version, on the title page, there should appear:

a. aligned on the left, the index best describing the subject of an article according to the Universal Decimal Classification (UDC) to be found at <http://teacode.com/online/udc/8/8.html>;

b. aligned on the right, there come name(s) of author(s), capitalised, set in italics;

c. affiliation(s), set in lower case, not italicised;

d. full address of (each) affiliation, set as above and following the pattern: St Petersburg State University (SPbSU), 7/9 Universitetskaya nab., St Petersburg 199034, Russian Federation;

e. email address(es).

2.5. All (sub)titles should follow the recommended order: semibold; semibold in italics; italics.

2.6. Longer quotations in the body of the text should be indented as a block quotation with a blank line preceding and following. The same applies to translation. An author may wish to number the quotations, in which case they should be numbered consecutively in round brackets: (1), (2) and so on. All numbering should be done manually. Any text pasted in should be in the layout specified above (2.2).

2.7. To emphasise single expressions and for terminology double quotation marks or italics should be used.

2.8. Page numbers should be at the bottom of the page, in the footer, aligned to the centre.

2.9. Footnotes should be set as footnotes, not endnotes, and should be numbered consecutively throughout; they should be in 10 pt, Times New Roman, 1.5-spaced and justified. Footnote numbers should be placed after the punctuation mark.

2.10. Any tables in the body of the text should be numbered consecutively, have titles, and be referred to in the text. The title and captions should be put below the table and be in 10 pt, Times New Roman. The table should follow directly at a single indent on its first mentioning in the body of the text. Large tables can go overleaf.

2.11. Any illustrations are either placed in the body of the text, or in the appendix, captions should be put below and be in 10 pt, Times New Roman. The source of any iconographic material should be correctly referred to. In case of a first publication, the author should have a right to publish it.

Part 3. Footnotes and References

3.1. The references should either be placed within the running text in round brackets (last name, year, pages), or in the footnotes. If the number of authors (editors) exceeds three, only the first one should be named, with et al. standing for all the rest irrespective of the language of the article. In the list of references, however, this abbreviated form should be resolved and the names of all the authors (editors) should be given in full. If reference is made to several works, they should be separated by a semicolon (Loroux 1981, 34–36; Dangrénaux et al. 1992, 38–40).

3.2. References to ancient texts, both in the body of the text and in the footnotes, should be given in round brackets and follow the pattern:

Hom. Od. 1, 1;

Arist. Pol. 1333b3–23;

Cic. Phil. 2, 20;

Lucr. 1, 47;

Pl. Chrm. 167e4–5;

Plin. HN 9, 176;

Plut. De glor. Ath. 347F–348A

CIL VI. 30845;

GL VII 51, 5.

The names of ancient authors should be abbreviated following the style of OCD, titles should be in italics, all numbers should be Arabic; referring to Homer, no Greek letters should be used. The real em dash without spaces should be used for the line, chapter, and page range.

3.3. The References (German: “Literaturhinweise”, Italian: “Bibliografia”, French: “Bibliographie”) should be listed at the end of the article and arranged alphabetically without numeration. All the works by one author should be arranged chronologically, beginning with the earliest work. For last names with particles the following order should be adopted: van den Hout (and not Hout van de). All titles of Russian scholarship should be both transliterated and translated and if considerable in number, they should form a reference list twice, first in Russian, then in transliteration and translation.

3.4. For transliteration one should either use the automatic system provided at <http://translit.net/ru/lc/> (among the options offered LC should be preferred), or observe the following rules of correspondence:

a – a, б – b, в – v, г – g, д – d, е – e, ё – e, ж – zh, з – z, и – i, й – i, к – k, л – l, м – m, н – n, о – o, п – p, р – r, с – s, т – t, у – u, ф – f, х – kh, ц – ts, ч – ch, ш – sh, щ – shch, ь – ‘, ы – y, ь – ‘, э – e, ю – iu, я – ia.

All titles should then be translated into the language of the article and introduced into the bibliographical details [in square brackets], followed by an indication of the language of the original (in Russian; in Modern Greek).

3.5. Please, note that the reference to the full titles of the works in the languages using characters other than roman is made in full in the footnote, and only on their first mentioning in the text. The reference placed in the running text should be transliterated: (Zaitsev 2003, 277).

3.6. The real em dash without spaces should be used for the page range both in footnotes and references: 182–198.

3.7. If reference is made to a revised edition, this should be indicated by a superior before the year of publication: ⁹1940.

3.8. If the title of a work is in English, all notional words should be capitalised.

3.9. Authors' initials should be single spaced: M. L. West, A. I. Zaitsev.

3.10. The extent of an article or passage should be given in full, and not as “f.”, “and ff.” or “sq.” or “sqq.”

3.11. In references to electronic resources the latest access date should be given.

3.12. All references should be given in the following form:
